

Was Neuroadaptation mit gutem Sehen in verschiedenen Distanzen zu tun hat

Der kurvige Weg zum klaren Sehen

LITERATUR

- [1] Bharadwaj, S. R. & Candy, T. R. Cues for the control of ocular accommodation and vergence during postnatal human development. J. Vis. 8, 14–14 (2008).
- [2] Levin, L. A. Adler's Physiology of the Eye: Expert Consult – Online and Print. (Elsevier - Health Sciences Division, Philadelphia, 2011).
- [3] Dymczyk, M., Przekoracka-Krawczyk, A., Kapturek, Z. & Pyżalska, P. Effect of a vergence-accommodation conflict induced during a 30-minute Virtual Reality game on vergence-accommodation parameters and related symptoms. J. Optom. 17, 100524 (2024).
- [4] Wang, X. M. et al. Addressing the Vergence-Accommodation Conflict in Virtual Reality: A Geometrical Approach. J. Vis. 24, 627 (2024).
- [5] Baker, F. J. & Gilmartin, B. The effect of incipient presbyopia on the correspondence between accommodation and vergence. Graefes Arch. Clin. Exp. Ophthalmol. 240, 488–494 (2002).
- [6] Wang, R., Lestrang-Angineur, E. & Kee, C.-S. Neural Adaptation to Unwanted Astigmatism in Progressive Addition Lenses Reduces Blur Sensitivity Across the Visual Field. ARVO Annu. Meet. Abstr. 67, (2026).
- [7] Ioannidis, A. The Challenge of Neuroadaptation for the Cataract Surgeon. (2026).
- [8] Rosa, A. M. et al. Functional magnetic resonance imaging to assess neuroadaptation to multifocal intraocular lenses. J. Cataract Refract. Surg. 43, 1287–1296 (2017).
- [9] Fernandes, P. et al. Short-term delay in neural response with multifocal contact lens might start at the retinal level. Doc. Ophthalmol. 145, 37–51 (2022).
- [10] Zhang, L. et al. Comparison of Visual Neuroadaptations After Multifocal and Monofocal Intraocular Lens Implantation. Front. Neurosci. 15, 648863 (2021).